NFPA and State Farm announce May 6, 2023 as Wildfire Community Preparedness Day

The National Fire Protection Association and State Farm announce that Wildfire Community Preparedness Day will be held on Saturday, May 6, 2023. The national campaign, which began in 2014, provides an opportunity for groups and individuals who live in wildfire-prone areas to come together on a single day to complete projects that can help make their homes and communities safer from wildfire. This year, the campaign is focused on what residents can do to help their home survive a wildfire.

Years of scientific research support the prescription of removing fuel sources from the area around the home - known as the "home ignition zone" - and is a key component to making a home safe from embers and radiant heat from wildfires. Simple, low-cost home improvement projects such as clearing dead leaves, debris, and pine needles from roofs and gutters, keeping lawns and native grasses mowed to a height of four inches, removing anything stored underneath decks or porches that could burn, and other similar actions are being actively supported by NFPA and State Farm on Preparedness Day and can be easily undertaken by the majority of homeowners.

"The threat of wildfire is becoming increasingly prevalent and dangerous, posing greater risks to people and property than ever before," said Lorraine Carli, NFPA vice president of Outreach and Advocacy. "In preparation for a future with more wildfire activity, homeowners need to understand their role and take action in reducing wildfire risk. We encourage people to use and share NFPA's wildfire safety resources with others in their community to not only make a difference in safety on Preparedness Day, but all through the year as well."

According to the National Interagency Fire Center, some 71.8 million properties in the U.S. are at some level of risk from wildfire. This number is predicted to grow by 11 percent over the next 30 years. In the past five years wildfires have destroyed nearly 63,000 structures, the majority of which were homes. This number is poised to grow as increased wildfire activity encounters the substantial number of homes and communities located in wildfire-prone areas.

ipients, requiring a congressional OK on all major federal regulations and other changes.

If you try to look at the issue in a non-partisan manner, it doesn't appear any more palatable. The Times article notes that the Congressional Budget Office has a list of over 100 steps that could make a meaningful dent in the deficit. These range from increasing payroll taxes or creating a new tax on consumption to eliminating itemized tax deductions altogether to deferring spending on military hardware and eliminating some agriculture programs.

Each would spark a pitched congressional battle.

My point here is not to say that a balanced budget, or even significant steps to cut the deficit, is impossible. But as members of the House and Senate and President Biden stake out their positions and then get deep into negotiations, it will help to understand why those negotiations are likely to become tense and difficult.

The budget, after all, is the blueprint for how the government affects life in the U.S. Everyone wants to balance it, but making serious steps in that direction will require true sacrifice.
