

Hampden Cultural Council accepting grant applications

HAMPDEN - The Hampden Cultural Council is looking for applicants! Each year, the Massachusetts Cultural Council works with local cultural councils around the state to award more than $7 million in grants to more than 7,600 community-based cultural programs. Over the past 28 years, volunteers on Hampden’s Cultural Council have been able to disperse over $137,000 in funding for arts, science, and cultural programs and projects for our residents. In 2025 alone, the Hampden Cultural Council awarded $6,500 in grant funding to local organizations and individual artists, benefitting our local community and enriching life within the town of Hampden.

Since 1998, the Hampden Cultural Council has helped fund cultural-centered experiences that include performances, workshops and lectures, in-school and out of school programming, historical preservation, public murals, music and drama production materials, and seasonal, arts and cultural festivals. Cultural groups have given performances on Native American culture, Irish American culture and music, and Tai Chi. The Hampden Cultural Council has also provided support in sending our Hampden students to the Springfield Symphony Orchestra, Old Sturbridge Village, Museum of Fine Arts Boston, and the Berklee Performing Arts Center in Boston.

To give you a broader idea of individuals and groups who have been awarded grants, some of our previous awardees have been mural painters, storytellers, musicians and multicultural performers, puppeteers, and enrichment program leaders. Other awardees have given lectures covering local history, WWII history, women in history, and the underground railroad. Additional recipients have lead workshops focusing on topics such as music, creative writing, painting, pastels, photography, wood-working, STEM, deafness and deaf culture, mindful practice, es, nutrition and health, and environmental conservation with aid of cultural council funding.

So, who can apply? Grant applications are accepted from individuals, public schools, libraries, municipal organizations, private organizations, and nonprofit organizations. The Hampden Cultural Council gives preference to qualified local organizations or individuals that show a clear benefit to the Hampden community. Groups who work with a Hampden sponsor or venue such as the library, school, senior center, or other community organization are preferred. Programming that is available to a wide range of participants or multiple generations of participants are considered ideal. Grants awarded by the Hampden Cultural Council should not be the sole source of funding for these events but rather should help offset the costs of bringing a program to our town. Eligible programs are awarded reimbursement grants after the event has taken place.

Our past grant recipients include the Hampden Senior Center, Hampden Public Library, Scantic River Artisans, The Theatre Guild of Hampden, the Hampden PTO, our high school, elementary and middle schools within HWRSD, One Book One Community, Old Post Road Orchestra, Pathways for Parents, Strings and Friends, and many individual artists.

The Hampden Cultural Council will start accepting online grant applications for FY27 on September 1st. The deadline for grant applications is October 15th, 2026. A full list of application guidelines can be found at <https://massculturalcouncil.org/communities/local-cultural-council-program/application-process/> Still have more questions or ideas for future programming for the town of Hampden? REVERE from page 1 to Lexington to warn Samuel Adams and John Hancock and local militias that British soldiers would be advancing their way—by sea.

At the start of his ride, Revere outrode two mounted officers.

“I had a better horse!” said Lepage as Revere.

“Did you really say ‘The British are coming! The British are coming!’?” asked an audience member.

“I did not,” said Lepage/Revere. “I said ‘The Regulars are coming out.’ The poet who came later got things wrong.”

Lepage cleared up other historical inaccuracies in Henry Wadsworth Longfellow’s 1860 poem, “Paul Revere’s Ride,” but went on to say that his mother read it to him as a child and it remains his favorite poem.

After alerting Adams and Hancock of the oncoming troops, the three riders were stopped by a British patrol. The other two riders escaped and continued on toward Concord, but Revere was questioned with a pistol to his head and his horse was confiscated. He returned on foot to Lexington, where he heard the first shots ring out on the town green around dawn.

“I heard a pistol fire,” said Lepage/Revere. “It has always been my contention that the Regulars fired first. That was a long day and night for me.”

Lepage spoke about Revere’s other revolutionary activities. Although there is no evidence that he participated in the Boston Tea Party, he was politically active and may very well have tossed some tea into the harbor.

“There were spies everywhere,” said Lepage/Revere. “I was among them.”

He made four and five-day rides to New York and Philadelphia as a courier for the revolutionaries, bearing critical messages.

Lepage observed, “I admire Revere’s willingness to sacrifice for a cause. Those rides definitely hurt him. He had to leave his family and business on some dangerous journeys.”

Despite his revolutionary work, Revere was not named an officer in the Continental Army—much to his disappointment. As a tradesman and as the son of a religious refugee from France (Appolis Rivoire), he wasn’t of the proper social class.

“They were looking for gentlemen,” Lepage/Revere remarked.

Instead, Revere served in the militia. Later in the war he was involved in a failed expedition to capture a British fort on the Penobscot River in Maine and was censured for cowardice. He fought for years to have his name cleared and was eventually found not guilty.

Having portrayed Revere for many years, Lepage said he has grown to appreciate his many accomplishments in later life.

He evolved from learning gold and silversmithing from his father to running a successful ironwork foundry where he cast bells and cannonballs. After the war he took on great financial risk to start a copper mill where he rolled copper into sheets to build the USS Constitution and other ships. He also worked as an engraver and dentist and had 16 children with two wives.

Lepage describes Revere as a pioneering industrialist.

“The war years were not glorious for me, but the post-war years were good to me and my family,” said Lepage/Revere.

At the end of the presentation and after questions from the audience, Lepage remarked that after decades of portraying both Paul Revere and John Adams he enjoys re-enacting them as older statesmen.

“My greatest joy is to show that these historical figures were human too,” Lepage said.

Emilie Lang, adult services librarian at the Wilbraham Public Library, thanked the Friends of the Library for sponsoring the event.

“Historical interpreters are always popular and we wanted to commemorate America’s 250th anniversary this summer,” Lang said. “I was happy to see some of our regular attendees and some new ones here tonight.”

Lepage will be appearing periodically at the Adams National Historical Park and at the Paul Revere House in Boston. He urges anyone interested in learning more about Paul Revere to visit the Paul Revere Heritage Site in Canton, Mass.

Upcoming events at the WPL include a textile drive and watercolor classes.
